Biography:

Danielle Steiner is a freelance writer and editor who loves nothing more than to lose herself in a screen full of words. She is the editor of two culinary magazines and regularly writes articles for various publications. With a BA in psychology and anthropology, alongside an editing certificate, she has unique insight into sharing engaging, meaningful stories of the communities she interacts with. When she isn't furiously typing up a storm on her laptop, she can be found with her hubby travelling, hiking, camping, paddleboarding, running, or doing anything else that involves the great outdoors.
