Biography:

Originally from Brigus, Maggie Burton currently lives in St. John's with her blended family, including four young children, and her partner, Michael. Trained as a classical violinist, Maggie is a multi-disciplinary performer with a background in arts administration and music education. Currently, she dedicates much of her professional time to community-oriented work as a St. John's City Councillor. Maggie has been the recipient of two Senior Poetry Awards from NL Arts and Letters, as well as a Riddle Fence Compton House Poetry Prize. Her writing has been published in literary journals across Canada. Her debut book of poems, Chores, came out in 2023 with Breakwater Books, following a self-published chapbook in 2017 called Hands That

Knew Heat.
