Biography: Romi Robinson is a filmmaker and artist from Goulds, Newfoundland and Labrador. She was one of the first graduates of the Television and Film Creation program at College of the North Atlantic's Paul L. Pope Centre for TV and Film. She has crafted several short films including Egg, which received an Honorable Mention for Best Student Short Film at the Markham International Film Festival; and How to Ghostbust a Bathroom, which was shown at the Smith Sound Film Festival as well as FogFest. She has also appeared as a background performer on numerous TV shows including Son of a Critch; Reacher; and Hudson and Rex. In November 2024, she performed in Power Productions' Tales of Us show, where she performed an original piece about her struggle to be seen as an autistic woman working in entertainment.
