Biography: Tammy L. Hynes, BA., BEd., MEd (b. 1970 Newfoundland, Canada) Tammy holds multiple degrees from Memorial University and a Teaching certificate for adult education from Harvard University. Tammy has been a teacher and administrator with NL schools since 2016. She previously taught in Los Angeles California where she lived with her husband, Sgt. Craig Brown (ret.). Tammy has written books and articles throughout the years, most notably featured as a writer in the international bestseller "How the Secret Changed My Life." She also wrote "The History of Renews" (no longer in print) and "Politics of the Kitchen", a cookbook from notable politicians of the early 2000s.

Selected Publications:

Lessons learned in the Classroom How the Secret Changed my Life (contributing author)

Selected Awards: N/A

Additional comments: I have been writing my entire life. In my teens and early twenties, I did writing for political speeches, editing content for publication, writing historical publications, plus much more. I have 2 masters degrees, so intensive training in research and writing methods.
